DESCRIPTION OF THE PROGRAMME

Religious experience is an indispensable key to the understanding of human behaviour and thought. The Religious Studies Programme invites students to join in current scholarly efforts to identify and to understand different forms of religious experience from a number of disciplinary perspectives. In the core courses, students will learn the history of different theoretical approaches to the study of religion and how to use various analytical methods to explore the rich variety of the world's religious traditions. Students are expected to acquire breadth both in disciplinary approach and in subject matter. Traditionally, Religious Studies has been a small programme, which emphasizes personal contact between its majors and the faculty participating in the programme.

ALL STUDENTS MUST TAKE:

- AP/HUMA 3803 3.0
- AP/HUMA 3804 3.0
- MAJORS ONLY: At least one course from each of the categories 1 -5 of the six categories of Religious Studies courses listed below
- Courses that cover at least three (3) different religions
- At least 12 credits at the 4000 level

DEGREE REQUIREMENTS

NOTE: For purposes of meeting programme requirements, Foundations courses will count as 6 credits towards the major.

RELIGIOUS STUDIES THEMES & CATEGORIES

- Category 1: Religion, Literature and the Arts
- Category 2: Religion & Gender
- Category 3: Religious Thought & Practices
- Category 4: Methods & Approaches
- Category 5: Self, Society and the Other
- Category 6: Languages

NOTE:

- Language courses (category 6) are strongly recommended but not required.
- Up to 12 credits in language courses may be counted towards the Religious Studies degree.

GUIDELINES

ACADEMIC ADVISING

Formal academic advising is crucial for all Religious Studies Majors and Minors. If you do not have a faculty member to turn to, please consult the Coordinator or Secretary of the Programme. Beyond formal advising, Religious Studies is a "student-friendly" programme. All Majors and Minors are encouraged to consult often with faculty members about their current courses, their future courses, and their career opportunities.

IMPORTANT

Students planning to continue their education in Religious Studies at the graduate level should be aware that many graduate programs require students to have taken a wide range of courses in the field at the undergraduate level and/or to have learned a foreign language. Please become familiar with the prerequisites of any graduate program to which you may choose to apply.

GENERAL GUIDELINES

The Religious Studies Programme is housed mainly in the Department of Humanities, in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies. Religious Studies students may enroll in courses offered by teaching units other than in the Department of Humanities. But note that students must always meet the enrolment requirements of the unit offering a course so selected. In some cases, students may also be required to obtain written permission from the Coordinator of the Programme, in order for such courses to be counted as credits towards a degree in Religious Studies.

Religious Studies Majors and Minors are encouraged to take Religious Studies courses at Glendon College 416-487-6732. Please consult the Coordinator before enrolling in courses offered outside the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies.

According to Faculty of Liberty Arts & Professional Studies regulations, students must take at least 50% of their major/minor courses and at least 50% of their total number of courses within the Faculty. Please bear this in mind when you consider taking courses outside the Faculty.

WARNINGS:

- There are limits to the number of non-Liberal Arts & Professional Studies courses you may take.
- Up to 12 credits of language courses may count towards the Religious Studies Degree provided that they are directly relevant to the program of study.
- When you take a 9.0 credit Religious Studies course (i.e. a Foundations Course), only 6 (six) credits will count towards your Religious Studies major or minor. The other 3 (three) credits will count as elective credits.
- Students may enroll in cognate courses only through their home units (e.g. the Dept. of English for AP/EN 4130 6.0 Milton). If you wish to enroll in a cognate course, you must meet any prerequisites applied to it by the home unit.

RELIGIOUS STUDIES COURSE OFFERINGS 2017-2018

DESCRIPTION OF COURSES OFFERED IN FALL/WINTER 2017-2018

ANTHROPOLOGY

AP/ANTH 3320 6.0 ANTHROPOLOGY OF RELIGIOUS RITUAL AND SYMBOLISM

How major anthropological thinkers seek to explain the variety and complexity of human ritual and symbolic behaviours informs this course. Ethnographic examples and materials on ritual events, religious symbolism, and belief systems will enrich this anthropological perspective. A series of topics will be investigated including shamans, sorcery and witchcraft, specific examples of Asian and European religions and New Age religious movements. After a review of various ways to approach the study of religion within Anthropology with a focus on symbolic theory, the course will concentrate on a number of topics.

Some of the areas of interest investigated and developed for extensive discussion include myth, ritual, shamans, sorcery and witchcraft, and religious systems of the Americas, Africa, Europe and Asia. Students will be encouraged to discuss topics including issues surrounding purity and pollution, gender and religion, religious festivals and performances, and major life concerns like the problem of evil and suffering. Students will be exposed to the anthropological approach to the study of religion through discussions of theories in anthropology and a variety of ethnographic examples. This course will provide the students with grounding in the anthropological approach to the study of religion and expand their knowledge of anthropological techniques and perspectives.

COURSE CREDIT EXCLUSION: AP/ANTH 3320 3.00 (prior to Fall 2012).

AMPD /ARTH 3345 3.0 (FALL) VISUAL CULTURE IN MODERN ASIA

Examines visual culture throughout modern Asia, building a framework for understanding artistic and cultural activities in the 20th century in their historical and social context. Explores visual and built environments including art works, exhibitions, literature, popular culture and events. Open to non-majors.

Examines visual culture at different localities of modern Asia that builds a framework for understanding artistic and cultural activities in the 20th century in their historical and social context. As modern Asia is not a unified but dynamic space, we will explore various kinds of visual and built environments including art works, exhibitions, literature, popular culture and events. Visual representations are analyzed as crucial in the formation of the norms of history, culture and politics of the region. Discussion focuses on the binary conception of "the East" versus "the West", and notions of "Asia," "tradition," "modernity," and nationalism in particular postcolonial conditions of East Asia. Questions such as what is "Asia"? How do we define the notion of "modernity" in Asia? These and other questions seek to construct and deconstruct fundamental assumptions on "modern Asian art," examining contemporary theories of art, culture, and nation. Students develop visual and analytic skills needed to read Asian modern art and culture in relation to growing tension and interaction between national, regional and global flows.

Open to non-majors.

AP/HUMA 1105 9.0 A MYTH & IMAGINATION IN GREECE & ROME

Note: This course has been approved in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies for general education credit (Humanities).

The mythical narratives of the ancient Greeks and the Romans constitute a continuous tradition that extends from before the reach of history to the present day. Myths survive in literary texts and visual art because their narratives have continued to prove compelling and fascinating in different languages, historical eras, and social contexts (the myths of Odysseus or of Romulus and Remus are just a few examples). Literature and art of all kinds have been inspired to retell and represent stories from Greek and Roman mythology, while the search for the meaning of mythic stories has informed and profoundly influenced a great range of intellectual disciplines including literary criticism, anthropology, and psychoanalysis. In these ways, myths have and continue to exercise a fundamental influence on western culture and, in consequence, even today they maintain a certain popular familiarity. On the other hand, the historical contexts in which the Greeks and Romans told and retold these mythical narratives are to us in the twenty-first century culturally alien and unfamiliar.

The aim of the course is two-fold: insofar as Greek and Roman culture is fundamental to the development of western culture, students will achieve a deeper historical understanding of the latter; yet because the world of the Greeks and Romans is in many ways very different from our own, students will develop the conceptual tools for comprehending another culture and so enhance their ability to understand and critique their own cultures. The course is also one of the Foundations courses and as such is intended to provide students with a solid grounding for undergraduate study by cultivating generally applicable and transferable skills; these include the development of clear, logical, and persuasive academic writing, critical and analytical skills for reading and understanding texts, constructive participation in group discussion and debate (primarily in tutorials), and basic methods and techniques of research.

AP/HUMA 1165 6.0A GODS AND HUMANS

Note: This course has been approved in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies for general education credit (Humanities).

This course explores the interactions between Gods and humans in literature, art, and philosophy. We focus on critical questions, emotional struggles, and personal journeys that characterize interactions between humans and Gods. Special attention is given to the reasons why religious and secular people are interested in these interactions today.

Prerequisites: None. Course credit exclusions: None.

Using texts, films, and diverse works of art, we personally, publicly, and critically engage in the richly living struggle for faith, certainty, and beauty in our everyday world. This course concentrates on four interdisciplinary themes: 1) the struggle to be good, 2) personal trials and transformations, 3) the challenge of the Enlightenment and 4) the cleaving to the Gods.

AP/HUMA 1300 9.0A CULTURES OF RESISTANCE IN THE AMERICAS: THE AFRICAN AMERICAN EXPERIENCE

Note: This course has been approved in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies for general education credit (Humanities).

This course addresses the ways in which diasporic Africans have responded to and resisted their enslaved and subordinated status in the Americas. Resistance is first addressed in relationship to slavery, but later in the course resistance is seen in a much broader context: in response to post-colonial and post-civil rights, and as an engagement of national, economic, cultural and social forces. Thus, resistance might be understood as a continuing legacy of black peoples' existence in the Americas. Resistance is, first, read in relationship to European domination in the Americas and, second, to national and other post-emancipation forms of domination which force us to think of resistance in increasingly more complex ways. The "anatomy of prejudices"—sexism, homophobia, class oppression, racism—come under scrutiny as the course attempts to articulate the liberatory project.

The course focuses, then, on the cultural experiences of African diasporic peoples, examining the issues raised through a close study of black cultures in the Caribbean, the United States and Canada. It critically engages the ways in which cultural practices and traditions have survived and been transformed in the context of black subordination. It addresses the aesthetic, religious and ethical practices that enable black people to survive and build "communities of resistance" and allow them both to carve out a space in the Americas they can call home and to contribute variously to the cultures of the region.

AP/HUMA 1400 9.0A CULTURE AND SOCIETY IN EAST ASIA

Note: This course has been approved in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies for general education credit (Humanities).

No single course can adequately address the richness and complexity of the cultures and societies of East Asia. However, this course will introduce students to important practices and concepts from a broadly humanistic perspective and offer a peek into what it might have been like to actually live in East Asia before widespread globalization. In order to do this, we will examine elements of the social, political, philosophical, artistic, and economic traditions that shaped both elite and popular culture in East Asia from the 1600s to the early 1800s. Our sources will include cultural artifacts (e.g., poems, paintings, clothing, etc.) from this period, writings by East Asians on their own and their neighboring societies, observations on East Asia by contemporary outsiders, and secondary sources by modern scholars who explore particularly challenging topics in depth. By analyzing both the forging of shared beliefs and the development of distinct identities in this critical period, we can better understand the ties between historical and contemporary East Asia, as well as between East Asia and the rest of the world.

Though the primary goal of the course is to teach students about a time and place quite removed from our own, the course is also designed to strengthen each student's ability to comprehend and critique his or her own culture. As a foundation for broader study at the university level, we will place significant emphasis on analytical skills, class participation, research methods, and writing. Since many aspects of East Asian culture will fall outside of the course curriculum, students will be expected to learn the critical skills of asking important and interesting questions and then figuring out how to produce informative and satisfying answers.

AP/HUMA 1710 6.0A THE ROOTS OF WESTERN CULTURE: THE ANCIENT WORLD (CIRCA 1000 BC-400 AD)

Note: This course has been approved in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies for general education credit (Humanities).

This course investigates the two major branches of Western thought: the Greco-Roman and the Judeo-Christian. The course begins by critically thinking about ancient times when oral stories were reworked and transmitted for generations. Students will be oriented to the ancient world by studying the emerging cultural identities of the ancient Hebrews against the background of ancient Mesopotamia. Most of the course will be engaged with the ancient Greeks from the Archaic period to the Classical and Hellenistic, and the Romans from the Republic to the early Empire. The course will end with a consideration of the emergence of proto-orthodox Christianity within the surprising mix of philosophical and religious ideas in the Roman world.

Our aim will be to examine texts both critically and in context. For example we will study the documentary hypothesis which suggests that the Hebrew Bible is a composite work from several sources, and we will consider how our knowledge of “the Greeks” is often based on scant physical remains, fragmentary literary sources which are themselves dependent on second and third hand authors.

Students will be introduced to many kinds of works that emerged in the ancient period: epic poetry, lyric poetry, fables, parables, dramatic works, philosophical and medical treatises and historical prose. We will want to engage in close readings of primary texts with a view to understanding key themes and ideas, historical, political, and social contexts, and religious beliefs and practices. We will consider influences from even more ancient civilizations; highlight certain Greek gods and goddesses and their festivals; consider the social status of women and slaves and differences between ethnic groups such as the Spartans and Athenians. We will engage with the texts interpretively which will involve examining various perspectives, the use of art and literature for ideological ends, as well as our own embedded assumptions about the past.

Our primary texts will include most of the following and many more: excerpts from the Hebrew Bible, Homer, Hesiod, Sappho, Aesop, Aeschylus, Sophocles, Aristophanes, Pythagoras, Plato, Aristotle, Herodotus, Thucydides, Hippocrates, Livy, Virgil, Lucretius, Epicurus, Epictetus, Apuleius, Marcus Aurelius, Ovid, and excerpts from the New Testament.

AP/HUMA 1845 6.0A ISLAMIC TRADITIONS

Note: This course has been approved in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies for general education credit (Humanities).

This course examines the beliefs, doctrines and institutions that have constituted the Islamic traditions from the beginning of Islam until the present. While examining some of the most important primary sources that have emerged within Islamic traditions, particular attention is placed on the variety of interpretive strategies used by Muslim exegetes, theologians, legal scholars, Sufis, etc. in their approach to variety of issues related to the sacred texts, the Qur'an and the Hadith. Since Islamic traditions are also viewed as cultural constructs, the course also explores its different manifestations throughout the Muslim world and beyond. In line with that view, the course examines Islamic traditions in terms of its system ("Great Tradition") and dynamics ("Little traditions"), which find expression in a wide scope of doctrines, interpretations, and concerns facing Muslims now and in the past.

ASSIGNMENTS: In-class quizzes (Five administered, four best graded, 5% each) 20%; Mid-year exam 20%. Two essays based on the sources used in the course (First essay 5 pages, including 'works cited' page; second essay 6 pages, including 'works cited' page), 10% and 15% respectively. Final exam 20%; Attendance 5%; Participation 10%

AP/HUMA 1846 6.0A INDIA: LIFE, CULTURE & THE ARTS

Note: This course has been approved in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies for general education credit (Humanities)

This course examines Indian culture, secular literary texts and other art forms (dance, drama, music, documentaries, cinema and folk arts) from ancient India to the present. In relation to the texts, class lectures and tutorials include background on different religious traditions, social structure, history and culture. Indian society is often presented as homogeneous and continuous, interrupted periodically by foreign intrusions. This course is based on the premise that, in fact, this society has always been a conflicted reality, that there have been, and continue to be, many "imagined" Indias. Through reading a variety of narratives from Indian and non-Indian sources, watching films and listening to music and guest lectures, we will examine questions such as the following: What have been the various imaginaries of Indian society? How have the borders among these imaginaries coexisted, contested or overlapped with each other? What changes and continuities over time do these narratives bring out? We will pursue these and similar questions in a roughly chronological order from the ancient to contemporary times. Course themes include: values, morals and hierarchical structures revealed in ancient folk tales; early literary voices of women; views of foreign travelers to India over the centuries; expressions of the sacred and the erotic; heterodox challenges to Hinduism; Indo-Islamic cultural heritage; the rise and impact of the British Raj; the emergence of the nationalist movement; influence of religious nationalism, independence and partition of India; women's rights movement from 19th-21st century; voices of the marginalized in modern India – dalits (untouchables), women and homosexuals; diasporic writings; and changes and inequities in contemporary Indian society.

AP/HUMA 1850 6.0A THE BIBLE AND MODERN CONTEXTS

Note: This course has been approved in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies for general education credit (Humanities).

This course offers a survey of much of the Hebrew Bible (Old Testament) and the Christian Bible (New Testament). We begin with a discussion of pre-Israelite religion (i.e., a reconstruction of religion in Palestine before the composition of the Hebrew Bible) and its parallels in Mesopotamian and Egyptian religious practices and texts. Then, we move through the texts of the Hebrew Bible from Genesis to Daniel, discussing each text's origins, themes, aims and parallels in ancient literature. In the second term we begin an examination of the New Testament noting, again, each text's origins, themes, aims and parallels in other literature of the time. Throughout the course we will note the historical context of each of the writings, and how ideas and imagery develop over time, from one text/location to another. Students taking the course will finish having a firm grasp of how the Bible is approached in the Humanities and a sound knowledge of fundamental writings that continue to influence Western culture.

RESERVED SPACES: Some spaces are reserved for Year 01 students

ASSIGNMENTS: Two map quizzes, weekly tutorial assignments, six unit tests, a brief research paper, a midterm and a final exam.

AP/HUMA 1855 9.0A BUDDHISM AND ASIAN CULTURES

Note: This course has been approved in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies for general education credit (Humanities).

This course introduces the diversity of Buddhist ideas and practices in Asia. Exploring Buddhism as a living tradition, it focuses on the impact and interpretation of Buddhism in historical and contemporary cultures. After developing a background in basic Buddhist philosophy we explore Buddhism's cultural impact in literature, art, ritual, ethics, economics, social interaction and politics.

Beginning with the biography of the Buddha and origins of Buddhism in ancient India, the course covers the development of Theravada, Mahayana and Vajrayana schools. The first semester will focus on the development of Buddhist ideas and their interpretation in contemporary practice in Southeast Asia (Burma/Myanmar, Thailand, Cambodia or Laos), South Asia (India, Nepal, or Sri Lanka) and East Asia (China, Japan or Korea). The first semester's topics will include philosophical and narrative texts, art, archaeology, film and studies of ritual, including issues of monasticism and meditation. The second semester will explore ethnographic accounts of Buddhist life and contemporary issues, including discussions of magic, alchemy, gender and sexuality, democracy, nationalism and war.

Required Texts: Lopez, Donald S. The Story Of Buddhism : A Concise Guide To Its History And Teachings. 1st ed. AP/HUMA 1860 6.0A THE NATURE OF RELIGION

AP/HUMA 1860 6.0B (Section B = FULLY ONLINE)

Note: This course has been approved in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies for general education credit (Humanities).

Explores the nature of religious faith, religious language (myth and symbol) and clusters of religious beliefs through an examination of the primary texts of several major world religions. Methodologies for the study of religion will also be examined.

This course is a critical study, based on classical and contemporary readings, of such issues as: the basis of religious claims, the meaning of religious discourse, the relationship between faith and reason, the nature and existence of God, the nature of religious experience, and the problems of evil and human destiny.

We will critically examine the nature and various expressions of religious questions about human life, death, suffering, and the afterlife. One of our main goals is to better appreciate religion as it exists in a modern global society. We will examine many different views and ideas in this course. What is sacred? What role do myth, ritual, and scripture play in people's lives today? Should we (I) care about the transcendent?

ASSIGNMENTS: Participation 10%; Online Exam 20%; Essay 1 – 25%; In Class Exam 25%; Essay 2 – 20%.

AP/HUMA 1875 9.0A CHRISTIANITY IN CONTEXT

Note: This course has been approved in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies for general education credit (Humanities).

This is an introductory course. It offers a general overview of the Christian tradition. From its beginnings, Christianity has been inextricably intertwined with the societies and cultures surrounding it. The focus of this course is the rituals, practices, beliefs and texts of Christianity, and how they were shaped by the political, social and cultural environments with which Christianity came into contact as it spread around the globe. Particular attention is paid to the diversity of Christian beliefs and practices resulting from those interactions.

This course examines Christianity as a socio-historical phenomenon. It explores with the tools of the academic study of religion the movements, texts, beliefs and practices of this religious tradition and the factors and forces shaping them.

This Foundations course focuses on the following critical skills:

- 1) Critical reading of primary and secondary texts
- 2) Critical thinking: examining the complex intersection of factors shaping the texts, beliefs, practices and debates within Christianity, and our own assumptions about them

- 3) Writing skills: planning, organizing, writing and documenting an academic essay
- 4) Presentation skills: planning, preparing and executing a presentation
- 5) Introduction to the terms and concepts related to the academic study of religion

AP/HUMA 1880 6.0A THE JEWISH EXPERIENCE: SYMBIOSIS AND REJECTION

Note: This course has been approved in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies for general education credit (Humanities).

An examination of the interaction of Jews and gentiles in selected periods, from antiquity through the 20th century. A case study in ethnic adaptation, the course seeks to understand how Jews sometimes adapted their lives to the world around them, and at other times withdrew into themselves, and how at certain times they exerted considerable influence on the people among whom they lived or who lived among them.

That Jews are distinct from non-Jews is a basic axiom of Jewish thought and literature and a seemingly obvious lesson of Jewish history. But is the basis of this distinction biological, religious, psychological, sociological, or some combination of the above? And in what ways have Jewish beliefs, teachings, and practices interacted with ideas, rituals, or habits of daily life associated with diverse non-Jewish environments? This course seeks answers to these and related questions by exploring the relationship of Jews and their neighbours from biblical through contemporary times; that is, it investigates the ongoing interaction and mutual transformation of Jewish teachings and the Jewish people in their diversity with the peoples and cultures among whom and which Jews have lived. In so doing, the course exemplifies general processes of religious, cultural, and social interchange and the types of creative influences or mutual frictions and rivalries (sometimes culminating in violence) that such processes can yield. In short, we study the Jewish experience not only in order to understand it better but also to gain insight into the human experience. (Note that the course is not about Judaism or Jewish history per se; that is, we do not speak systematically about Jewish thought, rituals, and so forth.)

AP/HUMA 2805 6.0A/AP/CDNS 2805 6.0A: WORLD RELIGIONS IN CANADA

Tracing the origins and development of different religious communities, this course identifies and analyzes ways in which the religious reflects, shapes and embodies the social and cultural diversity and plurality of everyday life in Canada. It invites students to explore a variety of religious experiences and traditions, as they are domesticated in local and familiar contexts upon Canada's social and cultural landscape. The course examines the sacred texts, myths, doctrines, ethics, rituals, institutions and attitudes to contemporary issues of First Nations peoples, Jews, Christians, Muslims, Ba'hais, Hindus, Buddhists, Sikhs and East Asians in their personal spiritual and communal religious lives. The course compares and contrasts classical and Canadian forms of the religious traditions studied, both in terms of their historical dispersion and in terms of their dealings one with another in today's Canada in both urban and rural environments. New Religious Movements and less well-known expressions of the spiritual and the religious also receive attention. Students are encouraged to investigate the contemporary status and future development of the spiritual and the religious in Canada, especially instances of their individual and institutional manifestation in material culture and the popular media.

AP/HUMA 3481 6.0 WORLD RELIGIONS

This is an academic study of what has come to be termed World Religions. We will look at the three major Western traditions, known also as the Abrahamic traditions — Judaism, Christianity and Islam. We need to realize right up front that these are broad classifications for what are truly complex and multivalent movements that have as much disagreement and contrasting beliefs and practices within each of them as they have between them. There is no single definition that constitutes exactly who every Jew, Christian and Muslim is or what he or she believes. Be aware of how much academic studies of these traditions work within artificial and imposed constructions when discussing them and making conclusions about them. With that having been said, we will still attempt to speak about them and make scholarly observations concerning them in as objective and non-judgmental away as possible. We will also look at the major Eastern traditions (Hinduism, Buddhism and East Asian religions) with the same awareness and the same objective. Our search is not for truth per se but for clarity of thought about the phenomenon known as “religion”.

AP/HUMA 3803 3.0M METHODS IN THE STUDY OF RELIGION

Explores the key approaches to the study of religion through an examination of various methodologies. Working through well-known case studies, students investigate a variety of approaches in practice to explore how questions of method shape our broader understanding of religious traditions.

This course explores key disciplinary approaches in the study of religion to understand how the choice of method shapes one's understanding of beliefs, rituals, everyday practices and religious meaning in general. We begin by asking questions about the value and significance of the term 'religion', which is neither self-evident nor easily defined. The course examines different disciplinary perspectives that inform the ways in which religion is approached, understood and conceptualized, while providing an opportunity for students to appreciate the complex role religion plays in today's world at many levels of social, cultural and political action. Finally, the course offers an overview of the field of 'Religious Studies' in terms of its historical and methodological scope, and examines its implications and challenges in light of many current issues such as secularism, spirituality, fundamentalism, globalization, minority and gender rights, and others.

RESERVED SPACES: All spaces reserved for Religious Studies Majors and Minors only.

AP/HUMA 3804 3.0A THEORIES IN THE STUDY OF RELIGION

This course introduces students to the foundational theorists and key questions of the academic study of religion. This course examines the lenses through which we view religion, that is, how differing theoretical models shape our understanding of religion as a human phenomenon. Starting with three key thinkers for the humanities and social sciences, Karl Marx, Emile Durkheim and Max Weber, the course explores a variety of theoretical models and contemporary debates. In this, it provides students with an overview of the development of the field. The overall goal is to become familiar with the range of theoretical approaches and history of the field so that we can place ourselves within the stream of critical scholarly thinking about religion. Some of the content of the course will shift from year to year to consider various historical, sociological, psychological, phenomenological, comparative, feminist and/or post-structuralist/literary theoretical approaches. It will expose students to key debates in the study of religion including the history and problems of definitions of religion, the insider/outsider problem, post-colonial critiques and critiques of secularism.

AP/HUMA 3831 3.0M (WINTER) Fully ONLINE TORAH AND TRADITION: JEWISH RELIGIOUS EXPRESSIONS FROM ANTIQUITY TO THE PRESENT

This course offers a historical exploration of Jewish beliefs, institutions, and bodies of literature, emphasizing continuities and changes in religious expression within and across different places, circumstances, and times. The course takes up five broadly defined periods: biblical, Second Temple, rabbinic, medieval, and modern. Its integrating perspective is an exploration of Jewish religious expressions in their continuities and diversities within and across these different periods, with special attention paid to evolving (or revolutionary) conceptions or interpretations of Judaism's foundation document, the Torah, as a result or reflection of immanent developments within Jewish life or in consequence of Jewish dialogues and disputations with a variety of "external" (that is, non-Jewish) stimuli, or some combination of these. A sub-section of the course explores Judaism's cycles of sacred days and the liturgies and ritual observances associated with them.

Topics covered include Israelite religion and biblical texts (including the "First Temple" period); Judaism in Persian and Greco-Roman times (the "Second-Temple" period); the emergence of rabbinic Judaism and its classical texts, with emphasis on Judaism's second "foundation document" (after the Bible), the Babylonian Talmud; varieties of Jewish literature and piety in medieval times; modern religious cross-currents (Reform, Orthodox, Conservative, Reconstructionist), and contemporary issues and challenges (e.g., post-Holocaust theology, feminism). Themes covered include God, the Jewish people, Torah and its interpretation, the land of Israel; the commandments (mitzvot) and their halakhic (legal) expressions; the Sabbath; daily and calendrical cycles of holiness; rites of passage, and messianic teachings.

AP/HUMA 3975 3.0) SC/STS 3975 3.0A SCIENCE AND RELIGION IN MODERN WESTERN CULTURE

Ordinarily, when we consider the relationship between modern science and religion, our thoughts are dominated by a series of vivid scenes from the past. We may remember the heroism of the seventeenth century scientist, Galileo who, when forced by the Catholic Church to abjure his belief in the heliocentric world system, defiantly murmured under his breath, "yet the earth still moves," as he was led away from his trial. Or the famous debates of 1860 on the validity of evolutionary theory, which pitted the biologist T. H. Huxley against Bishop Samuel Wilberforce, may come to mind. Perhaps we may even recall the sensational Scopes trial of the twentieth century as symbolic of the relations between science and religion. Dramatic, confrontational episodes such as these have come to symbolize our sense that ever since the seventeenth century there has been a war between supporters of science and the upholders of religion. But does the "conflict" thesis really capture the historical reality?

In this course we will examine the relationship between science and religion through a study of the implications of scientific thought for significant intellectual developments from the seventeenth century to the present. We will focus on the words and thoughts of major thinkers who tried to articulate their views on the relationship between science and religion, starting with the ideas of the seventeenth and eighteenth century intellectuals who investigated the consequences of Newtonian science for the religious perspective. Next, we will discuss the disruption of the harmonious relationship between science and religion in the nineteenth century by new discoveries in geology and Darwin's theory of evolution. Then, we will study important twentieth century developments including the challenges presented by relativity theory, quantum physics, modern astronomy, and creationism to the peaceful co-existence of science and religion. Finally, we will examine the relationship between science and unbelief as well as the science-religion issue outside of the west. Throughout the course we will question the validity of the "conflict" thesis, or even its opposite the "harmony" thesis, to accurately describe the historical relationship between science and religion.

ASSIGNMENTS: Research essay 30%; Oral report 20%; Final take home essay 30%; Class participation 20%.

AP/HUMA 4178 6.0A DEATH OF GOD

Nietzsche's famous, prophetic claim that "God is dead" is often taken as describing the declining significance of God within modernity. Adopting neither a pro nor anti theistic stance, this course critically examines the relationship between atheism and modernity in Western thought and culture by drawing upon religious, philosophical, scientific, literary, historical, sociological, artistic, and cinematic sources.

The course shall take both a historical and a theoretical approach in its investigation. We will aim to understand when, how and why atheism emerges and develops in the way that it does, and the influence it has across culture, while also undertaking to grasp theoretically what it is, as well as the presuppositions and implications of its position. To achieve these aims, we will investigate the ideas of God and faith in Judaism, Christianity, and Greek and Roman philosophy; the relationship of science and religion in the West; the meanings of secularism, secularization, and secularity; philosophical and theological arguments for and against faith in God; the relationships between theism, atheism, nihilism, and meaning; representations of faith and its loss in literature, art, and film; and the possibilities of thought and practice offered by so-called "post-religious," "post-secular," and "post-atheistic" orientations.

AP/HUMA 4775 3.0A (FALL) SOUTH ASIAN RELIGIONS AND POPULAR CULTURE

The objective of this course is to inquire into how South Asian religions are represented, practiced, communicated, and transformed through popular culture. How are religious themes, images, and ideas explored in contemporary film, television, print media and music? What roles do language, gender, caste, literacy, and poverty play in the reading of cultural texts, and in the practice of religion? What can 'popular culture' mean in a subcontinent with more than 1.5 billion people, with hundreds of languages and multifarious religious traditions? How are ideas about religion transmitted and disseminated through the South Asian diaspora and around the world?

We will begin by considering historical contexts for 'popular' culture, studying some significant early and medieval art forms and their engagement with Hinduism, Buddhism, Islam, and Sikhism. With this grounding, we will then move on to consider contemporary popular cultural forms like visual art, film, television, photography, and comics in their historical, regional and social contexts. Throughout the course, we will consider religion and popular culture in relation to colonialism, nationalism and communalist conflict. The course travels through India, Pakistan, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka, allowing us to explore several religious and cultural locations. In the latter part of the course, we will also consider South Asian religions in the diaspora and the role of globalization. Taking an interdisciplinary approach to the History of Religions, the course draws on theory and research in cultural studies, art history and film studies.

ASSIGNMENTS: Textual analysis 20%; Seminar facilitation on assigned reading 10%; Research project proposal and bibliography 10%; Final research project 30%; Oral presentation of research project 5%; Participation (seminar discussions) 15%; Weekly reading journal 10%.

AP/HUMA 4803 6.0A /AP/HIST 4225 6.0A CHURCH, MOSQUE AND SYNAGOGUE: JEWS, MUSLIMS AND CHRISTIANS IN MEDIEVAL SPAIN

The Muslim conquest of the Iberian Peninsula in 711 inaugurated a complex tri-religious society that was to endure nearly eight hundred years (and more than eight centuries on the Muslim lunar calendar). This development has given rise to Spain's designation as a "land of three religions" and Spain's reputation as premodern western Europe's foremost "pluralist" society. It has also made Spain, as compared with other European lands, a hard country for non-Spaniards to understand.

This course seeks to explore diverse facets of Jewish-Muslim-Christian convivencia ("dwelling together"; coexistence), a topic that continues to be the object of attention for a range of scholars -- and many beyond the academy who have found it pertinent to an understanding of our own age. The course focusses on religious, intellectual, and cultural contacts and their socio-psychological dynamics, placing these in various historical and at times (very partial) geographic, linguistic, political, economic, and technological contexts. The course centers on written sources but does not wholly neglect iconography, music, and architecture. It stresses diverse perspectives within and across religious boundaries and at times forces us to ponder difficulties faced by scholars seeking to explain religious or religiously-linked phenomena (e.g., what actual human experience lies behind the metaphor of "religious conversion"?). Methodologically, our enterprise emphasizes study of primary sources as the only way to arrive at a trustworthy model of convivencia. In the course of such study, attention is paid to peculiarities of genre, the frequent indeterminacy of evidence, and difficulties involved in formulating historical assessments.
